Democrats Begin To Take Notice

ORGANIZATION IS GOING ON AND SOME STRONG CANDIDATES WILL BE NAMED FOR OFFICE

Democratic politics are warming up and the indications point now to a lively campaign, especially in the County elections. The prominent men in the party seem to feel very sanguine over the prospects of the party this election and steps are to be taken promptly to make a vigorous campaign.

The announcement that Curtis P. Laukea would accept the nomination for sheriff has created considerable interest among members of the party and where there had not been great interest before, the party appears to be taking renewed hope and a hard fight seems likely to be made to win the office of sheriff. It is thought by some that Laukea will receive the nomination for sheriff by acclamation. There has been a strong demand for him, although he has been very ill for the last two weeks. It is now understood that he has consented to make the run.

There are several candidates mentioned for the position of deputy sheriff. Harry Juen is understood to be willing to accept the nomination and the names of William Jarrett, H. J. Mossman, David Kahalehau and one other name are being discussed.

The indications are now that some strong candidates for supervisors will be named with Frank Harvey as supervisor-at-large and Abraham Fernandez and H. T. Moore as supervisors for Honolulu. There has been some opposition to Moore from the Fifth District, but to what extent the opposition will go, remains to be seen.

R. H. Trent will, of course, receive renomination for treasurer.

There appears thus far to be a feeling of harmony among the Democrats and while there may be contests over several nominations there is quite a marked desire on the part of the leaders and their followers to nominate as strong a ticket as possible.

There will be a caucus of delegates on Friday night at 7:30 o'clock at Waverley Hall.

A meeting to organize the Third precinct of the Fourth District (the old Second) will be held Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock, at 1515 Young street. The precinct lies between the mountain and the sea and Punahou and Pihikoi streets.

he absent and instead of the wild enthusiasm there will be a modest clapping of hands as Jumbo, the trained monkey, stands on his head.

The fighting game in Hawaii is paid. Yesterday afternoon a delegation of ministers called upon the United States officials and entered a protest. The law was looked up and it was learned that there is absolutely no way in which a pugilistic encounter could be pulled off in a Territory of the United States and the men go unpunished. The ministers demanded and the officials were obliged to admit that they were right. In the opinion of the various lawyers of the town the game is dead and will remain so. It is all over. The game has taken the count.

Dick Sullivan, the local champion says that the five years on the reef does not look good to him. "I don't back Uncle Sam, you can bet on that. I will take the count. No reef for me. I'm down and out."

Jack McFadden was found busily engaged in packing his suit case. "Ah, his twenty-three for me. I'm going back to the woods. Back to the tall weeds for me. Just tell them that you saw me. Say what time does that steamer leave on Saturday?" And Jack resumed his packing.

And so hereafter we will substitute soccer and tennis for the fighting game—and when we are real blood thirsty and want to do something real naughty—we will have a game of title-de-winks."

MINISTERS CALL ON BRECKONS

and gamblers which followed the pugilistic bunch from one proposed fighting place to another. It has never been enforced here, and Breckons is quoted as stating that unless a formal protest and complaint were filed with him he would not apply it to such contests as have taken place here recently. In the event of the Ministerial Association lodging a protest, however, the law will be enforced, and fights in Hawaii will probably be at an end.

Manager Adams of the Zoo was busy arranging the details of a return match between Sullivan and McFadden, but when he heard of the protests he got busy trying to find out how to bring the fight off without piliika with the law. Adams appealed to Breckons and was very plainly told what to expect. Then he began to study the law, and as a result there may be a brand new kind of pugilistic contest when Sullivan and McFadden meet again, if ever. The fight depends as much upon Sullivan's willingness to tuck the negro as upon the law and Sullivan's willingness appears to be quite as doubtful.
